Summer Edition #98

Russell R. Shippee
Author, Speaker, Life Coach

SURF'n SAFARI 2009

Dear Friends,

In the USA summer unofficially ends September 1st. Don't rush the end, and remember, the end is just the beginning. Enjoy the moment.

It's been a great August. I was able to take some old sailors out who remember the joy of wooden boats but no longer have their own. It was a treat for them. Then, a young boy asked to go out. His parents told him he could go only if he was potty trained. Well, he had resisted for a long time but the chance to sail got him to potty train quickly. So, I had fun helping others. How do you do the same? How can you do the same? How can you share your passion with others?

What about school? What are you doing now to further your education and knowledge? Life will be more interesting and worthwhile if you take the challenge to learn something new. Yes, you have time, we all have the same time, and we can all learn to use it more efficiently.

If you are in the RI area on September 16th, you can come to the Ocean State Business Expo and hear me speak in person about living the life you desire. It'll be interesting and fun. Just hit reply and send me an email and I'll send you the details. Yes, You!

Have you every done Mind Mapping? Well, it works. It worked for the likes of Leonardo da Vinci. I have been using Mind Mapping for several years and it works! I'd suggest reviewing the product in the advertisement below. You'll be impressed with the names of the big businesses that use it. It works, and it works well.

We are again bringing the Simple Truths 212 Degrees to your attention. Take the time to review it and the message. It may well open your eyes and help you to improve yourself. Why not? If not NOW, when?

No, No, No are the words I like to use. I mean No and they laugh thinking I am cute. Sure, I am cute and I say No as needed. It's the word, the repetition, the tone, and the smile. No can even mean yes in the right tone and look. It's fun. Do you still mix it up for excitement in your communication? You should.

Yup, I wrote the article this week. First, it's been a while and I've been asking. Second, Grandpa has been busy so it was easy for him to say Yes to me.

Are you wondering if I'll be at the Ocean State Business Expo with Grandpa on September 16th? Guess you have to go to find out. :)

Yes, I fell asleep at the beach again. Grandpa fell asleep also; but he won't let us put that picture in the newsletter. I think I wore him out chasing me. It's fun to see him run after me and his friends laughing at him. Good fun for all.

SCHOOL

It's me, Cameron. It is almost September as I write this, and all I hear about is school, school is starting, I have to buy this or that for school.

Then, adding insult to injury, they tell me I'm still too young for school.

Let me tell you, school is not just sitting in a classroom, and I am not too young for school. The reality is I am in school everyday. I am learning and have been right from the moment I took my first breathe.

Life, itself, is a school and school, the classroom with someone in the front teaching the students in the seats, is just one small aspect of school. We learn and grow from the day we are born till the day we die.

Sure, structured school is starting; but that is just another form of school. I hope you don't think learning is only for the structure of a school. Gosh, I hope you all learned something or many things this summer. I did.

Learning is what we do every day and when we stop learning we starting dying.

I may not be of age to go to a formal public school, but I sure am learning every day. I am learning how to live, how to communicate, how to talk, how to play, how to interact with others, how to get my point across, and many many other things. Every day I learn something new, and I practice what I have learned so I can get better and better at it.

When you graduate from high school, college, or graduate school, your education is just beginning as you enter the work force. Wouldn't you agree?

I like the saying, 'if you want to learn something, teach it.' My parents are learning a lot teaching me, and I am learning a lot teaching them.

The key is to be learning in all situations. We can learn in school, from others, in groups, from educational television and from reading. We can also take online courses from various schools.

I can tell you what I have learned so far this year, and I can also tell you some things I am working on to learn. What have you learned this year? What are you currently learning? What is on your list to learn?

Learning is one of the joys of life for people of any age. If you do better in a classroom setting, then sign up now for one this fall.

Grandpa told me of the olden days before computers and even before television. I can't imagine that. They are now telling us that technology is changing so fast that the fastest growing occupations did not exist a few short years ago. This makes me think I will have to be learning all the time just to keep up. That means you, too. He tried to tell me that years ago people did not have cars and rode horses. Boy, I can't believe he'd tell a story like that and expect me to believe it!

Maybe we can compare notes at the end of the year as to what each of us has learned. Would you like to do that?
